

MFI TRAINING PROGRAMS

Incite Discovery and Learning!

How training is delivered is as important as the training top. We know that perception follows behavior, and a great training experience is a theatre: Participants aren't passive audience members but actors discovering the meaning behind the subject. The facilitator is the director, orchestrating the flow and energy of group interactions, adjusting the tempo, the tools, the content.

Don't just train your people. Unleash them.

In our ADD world of short attention spans, multigenerational struggles, and shrinking engagement numbers, companies struggle to develop a learning culture with the right skills and attitudes.

We use the latest in adult learning, neuroscience, simulations, and theatre to create a learning-by-doing atmosphere. People learn a lot with our training programs because they enjoy the process, stretch beyond what they thought possible, and commit to new behaviors and attitudes back at work.

"I can't say enough about the program and especially Dean's expertise and skill as a facilitator. His methods are not only informative and motivating but extremely thought-provoking. Dean has a way about him that makes the team take a look at how it performs together and also makes each individual examine themselves and their role in the team. An inspiring, productive, and memorable experience."
